DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 7-14, 21-24 and 26-36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Krueger in view of Tobinaga et al. Krueger discloses an electronic engine control system for ignition and fuel injection in a rope-start engine without a battery which may be used in a snowmobile but does not determine reverse running and disable the firing sequence in a two stroke engine. Tobinaga et al teaches that it is known to determine reverse running and disable the firing sequence in a two stroke engine. Rotational position is determined as set forth at column 5, lines 56-61. Reverse running determination and disabling of the firing sequence is described at column 16, lines 23-43. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the electronic engine control system of Krueger for use in a two stroke engine and to include a reverse running disabling feature, as taught by Tobinaga et al, in order to provide an operative engine and to prevent damage to the engine. The resulting control system would inherently perform the method of claims 1 and 7-14 and would inherently function as specified by claims 21-24 and 26-35. It would have been an obvious matter of design choice to include a computer in the electronic control unit per claim 36.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 15-20, 40 and 42-53 are allowed.

Claims 2-6, 25 and 37-39 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. While the meaning of claims of issued patents are interpreted in light of the specification, prosecution history, prior art and other claims, this is not the mode of claim interpretation to be applied during examination. During examination, the claims must be interpreted as broadly as their terms reasonably allow. This means that the words of the claim must be given their plain meaning unless applicant has provided a clear definition in the specification. In re Zletz, 893 F.2d 319, 321, 13 USPQ2d 1320, 1322 (Fed. Cir. 1989). One must bear in mind that, especially in nonchemical cases, the words in a claim are generally not limited in their meaning by what is shown or disclosed in the specification. It is only when the specification provides definitions for terms appearing in the claims that the specification can be used in interpreting claim language. In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 441, 164 USPQ 619, 622 (CCPA 1970). There is one exception, and that is when an element is claimed using language falling under the scope of 35 U.S.C. 112, 6th paragraph (often broadly referred to as means or step plus function language). In that case, the specification must be consulted to determine the structure, material, or acts corresponding to the function recited in the claim. In re Donaldson, 16 F.3d 1189, 29 USPQ2d 1845 (Fed. Cir. 1994) (see MPEP § 2181- § 2186). See MPEP § 2111.01.

Art Unit: 3747

Claims 1, 7-14, 21-24 and 26-36 lack sufficient detail to distinguish over the prior art as applied above. Tobinaga et al states at column 5, lines 56-59, "A crank angle signal generator 33 is also provided, which together with the pulser coils 32 enables the controller 29 to determine the rotational position of the crankshaft 12." The terminology "determining the absolute rotational position" is broad enough to embrace the rotational position determining operation of the ignition system of Tobinaga et al. When reverse rotation is not detected by the reversing prevention program, the ignition system of Tobinaga et al operates "to continue ordinary ignition timing control" (column 16, lines 39-40). This implies that ignition has already started when the reverse rotation interruption occurs.

Claim 34 appears to fall under the scope of 35 U.S.C. 112, 6th paragraph, however, the arguments provide no reasons why the applicant believes the prior art element should not be considered an equivalent to the specific structure, material or acts disclosed in the specification. See MPEP § 2184 regarding the burden of proving nonequivalence.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
